regularization is not permissible. On the contrary, the respondent in fact asking for more documents to regularize such construction. The respondent Corporation is bound to consider such application if documents are provided. In the present case, there is also dispute about so called no objection given by the erstwhile landlord for construction in question. The present landlord, disputing the genuineness of the said document. Considering this, at this stage, I am of the view that there is sufficient case made out for status-quo order pending the final hearing of the appeal. The parties to maintain status-quo in the meanwhile.

2. The Civil application is disposed of, accordingly.
